

Baja California, Mexico

Thursday, 21 June 2007

In December of 2006, we took a trip to Baja, Mexico. With kids in tow, plus luggage, car seats, and playpen for the baby to sleep in, this was a pretty ambitious undertaking. We were mostly driving through desert, and off-roading. Of course, my camera gear all went along too, so I got some decent pictures, though nothing like I might have gotten going alone. Still, something's better than nothing, and for what it's worth, I got some really good shots. (I'll have a more full report on Baja when I get some time to really put up a full travelogue)